

2012 Hall of Fame

On Friday, March 9, 2012, the South Carolina Athletic Administrators Association inducted four outstanding retired athletic directors. They all had long, impressive careers as athletes, coaches and athletic administrators. Their caring, professional enthusiasm for high school athletics touched the lives of many student-athletes and coaches. The examples of leadership and integrity demonstrated by these individuals set the bar high for current athletic directors.

SCAAA HALL OF FAME INDUCTEES

John E. Brunson, II

SCAAA Board member from 1998-2000. John came to Orangeburg-Wilkinson High School in 1972 and stayed there through 2001. He became Athletic Director and PE Department Head in 1981. John oversaw the design and building of excellent athletic facilities at the new high school, which was the host of many SC High School League play-off and tournament games.

Dale Maxwell Evans

Dale served as Athletic Director at Dorman High School in Spartanburg. His leadership took it from a school that had won only one state championship to winning 20 state titles in eight different sports. His ability to recruit top-notch coaches to the school enabled Dorman to become very competitive and enabled many student-athletes to receive scholarships.

Charles Arthur Stuart

Beginning in 1957 Charlie was the Athletic Director of Dreher High School in Columbia. After a successful career there, he became District AD for Richland County School District One, the first District AD in SC. During his tenure, he succeeded in making P.E. a required course and strengthening intramural sports. Charlie Stuart set the bar for future generations of Athletic Directors in South Carolina.

Barbara Haigler Wilkes

Barbara was one of the first women athletic directors in South Carolina. She served two terms on the SCAAA Board and was SCAAA President in 1995-96. She was Athletic Director at North Central High School for 19 years. For several of those years, all 12 varsity teams reached the state play-offs. In retirement she continues to be involved by working at the Spring Conference.
